Eqrem Çabej University of Gjirokaštër

Eqrem Çabej University is a university in the Albanian town of Gjirokaštër, named after Eqrem Çabej. It is one of nine SIFE accredited universities in Albania. It was created as a University with the name of "Eqrem Çabej" with decision of the Albanian Government nr. 414, dated 12 November 1991, on the basis of the Higher Institute of Pedagogy that was already established in 1971. It is the most important teaching and scientific institute of Southern Albania.

University level courses in Gjirokastra had already started in 1968 when a branch of the business school of the University of Tirana had started to operate. One year later, in 1969 started the Agronomy School as a branch of the Agricultural University of Tirana, which lasted 10 years. Also, in 1969 started the Pedagogical Institute and the branch of the Academy of Physical and Sports Education Vojo Kushi which operated for 5 years.

ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

This International Conference emerges as a confluence of erudition and inquiry, a space where the disciplines of Education, Social Sciences and Humanities converse, intersect and illuminate. It aspires to provoke dialogues on the intellectual and cultural imperatives of our time: the shifting landscapes of pedagogy, the resonances of social justice, the architecture of digital learning and the narratives of mental and cultural well-being. By assembling voices across continents and disciplines, the conference seeks to dissolve academic silos, invigorating a dialogue that nurtures critical thought, creative praxis and socially responsive scholarship. Plenary addresses, scholarly paper presentations, workshops and panel discussions shall map the currents of educational transformation, interrogate cultural paradigms and envision human, inclusive and forward-looking educational futures.

Participants shall depart not only with expanded networks and collaborative possibilities but also with renewed intellectual purpose to become architects of a reflective, ethically attuned and culturally vibrant global community.
